WARDEN EGAN REQUESTED STUTZMAN BE DROPPED

Stutzman Wanted Board to Fire Deputy Warden Fred Healy.

MAY PROBE ROCKVIEW

That John M. Egan, before resigning recently as Warden of the Western Penitentiary, at Pittsburgh, recommended to the Board of Inspectors the dismissal of John O. Stutzman from the position of superintendent of Rockview prison, became known here this week. Egan, in advising that Stutzmen be dropped, set forth that the latter was incompetent, also that the Stutzman system of self-rule among convicts at Rockview had proved a complete failure.

Whether the Board of Inspectors have formally acted upon Egan's recommendation has not been announced. About Rockview the belief prevails that Deputy Warden Healy has been placed in sole charge of prison management, and that Stutzman has been instructed to confine himself to construction work. This, however, has not been confirmed.

It is stated that the force of State constabulary on duty at Rockview has been gradually reduced in numbers during the last ten days, with only a sergeant and four or five men remaining on duty there to enforce discipline. It was reported last week that a branch barracks of State police would be established permanently at Rockview, but so far this has not been done.

Just what situation will prevail if all of the State policemen are withdrawn from Rockview is a matter that is causing no little anxiety among persons residing nearby the prison boundaries. It is feared by some, at least, that unless the most rigid measures possible are continued at the prison an uprising among the convicts may develop at any time.

Egan, who nominally was in charge of both the Pittsburgh penitentiary and Rockview, but with little or no actual control over either, resigned as Warden, it is stated, because of lack of support from certain members of the Board of Inspectors. Egan's friends assert that Governor Pinchot and the Department of Welfare, at Harrisburg, were not in sympathy with his stand for economy and his efforts to curtail the cost of maintaining prisoners. Egan's system of strict enforcement of discipline was not looked upon with favor, it is said, by several men on the Board of Inspectors said to be inclined to be "emotional," and also women who have lately regarded themselves as "modern penologists."

There was a stormy session of the Board of Inspectors, at Pittsburgh, before Egan turned in his resignation. From what may be learned, Egan emphatically charged Stutzman with being incompetent and thoroughly impractical and impossible from every stand-point. Egan further charged, it is said, that Stutzman acted in matters of grave importance without knowledge of the Board of Inspectors or approval by the Warden. The transfer of two carloads of convicts from the Philadelphia penitentiary to Rockview some months ago was cited as an instance.

Another development of the last few days is the report, seemingly authentic, that Stutzman on several occasions requested the Board of Inspectors to dismiss Deputy Warden Healy from Rockview. Thus far Healy, generally regarded as the most experienced man at Rockview, has not been disturbed.

Unconfirmed reports are to the effect that there is a pronounced division among members of the Board of Inspectors over the question of what is the best system of management for convicts. One group, it is stated, favors the so called "honor system," whereby the prisoners are accorded virtually self-government. The other members adhere to the belief that convicts should have humane treatment at all times, but that compulsory obedience is necessary, with reasonable punishment for violation of rules. The honor system, as tried out at Rockview, led to such deplorable conditions that seven or eight prisoners walked off in a single day, and Supt. Stutzman found it necessary to summon the State police, who were placed in full charge of all matters of discipline.

Recently only the alertness of a guard, it is said, saved the management at Rockview from a situation that would have proved extremely embarrassing, to say the least. Mrs. Stutzman, it is said, accompanied by her chauffeur, took several convicts in her car and started to drive to Bellefonte on a shopping expedition. Seemingly, she was surprised when a guard at the gate informed her that it

ASSAULT IS ALLEGED

John Pinchock, the 18 year old Snow Shoe boy who shot and killed 15 year old Margaret McDowell in the Clarence garage Wednesday of last week, was arrested by Sergeant William Metcalf, of the State Police, on Saturday and is now in the County jail charged with murder. Information received at this office last week indicated that the shooting was accidental. Since then, however, additional information developed that led to the arrest of Pinchock.

Constable Joseph Wade, of Snow Shoe, appeared before Justice of the Peace Kline Woodring on Monday, and secured a warrant, after making the following information:

"That on the 10th. day of September, John Pinchock did feloniously wilfully, deliberately, premeditatedly, and with malice aforethought, attack Margaret McDowell. And that he then did shoot with a pistol the said Margaret McDowell, and injure her to such an extent that she died."

Pinchock is also charged with carrying a concealed weapon with the intention of committing the murder.

The charges are most sweeping and if true, are indicative of a deliberate murder. Friends of the girl say the shooting was the result of her refusal to accept advances made by Pinchock. This, it is said, Pinchock denies.

Gettig and Bower have been retained as attorneys for the defense and a hearing will be held before 'Squire Woodring, after the September term of Court.

To many persons the charges came as a complete surprise. Following the shooting a Coroner's inquest was held and Pinchock was exonerated. This verdict was not acceptable to friends of the young girl, who declared from the beginning that the shooting had not been accidental.

L/RGE NUMBER MARCHED

Many Volunteers and Soldiers in Defense Day Parades.

Upward of 1,000 men were in line in the monster Defense Day parade at Bellefonte last Friday afternoon. In addition to this number several hundred National Guard troops, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Campfire Girls marched. Undoubtedly it was the largest patriotic demonstration ever staged in Bellefonte, and the number of men who volunteered far surpassed the expectations of those in charge.

The address given by Col. Hugh S. Taylor to the massed crowds on the Diamond was timely and to the point, and fully up to the high standard set by him in his memorable war speeches.

A record crowd was in attendance at Hughes field to see the snappy ball game in which Milesburg defeated Snow Shoe, 8 to 2. The Defense Day "Ball" at the armory in the evening broke all records for attendance and the music furnished by Wetzler's orchestra was fine.

The ceremonies at Boalsburg, which were participated in by State College and Penns Valley, were of a similar nature as those in Bellefonte. 385 men enlisted for the day, and 96 women enrolled in the Red Cross. Col. Jennings Wise, of Washington, D. C., was the principal speaker of the day, and delivered a wonderful address. Features of the day, included a flag raising, a baseball game, and a barbecue. The government reservation was packed with cars and one of the largest crowds ever seen in that vicinity was on hand.

In the base ball game, the McKinley arm and bat proved too much for the weakened Snow Shoe aggregation, who lost four of their stars the day of the game, by reason of their leaving for school. A summary of the box score is as follows:

Three base hits, McKinley, Jodon, Kachik. Two base hits, McKinley and Jones, 2. Earned runs, Milesburg 6, Snow Shoe 4. Double plays, Tobias to L. Wagner. Left on bases, Milesburg 10; Snow Shoe 4. Stolen bases, Oswalt 2, McKinley, Fye. Sacrifice hits, Malone. Struck out by McKinley 9; by Harnish 3. Base on balls, Harnish 2. Hit by pitcher, Harnish 1. Umpires, Hartswick and Kline.

Obligations and Duties of a Forest Fire Warden

(Article No. 2)

When the oath of office is administered making a man a forest fire warden, he casts himself within easy reach of the law. He has sworn himself to a duty. He has seen the duty and pledged himself to perform it to the best of his ability. He is just as important in the great scheme of preventing forest fires as is the highest official in the land in comparative relation to duty. We might well term him a standard bearer, a man with an ideal.

In his community he is admired and respected because of the stand he has taken. His ability is above the ordinary, as his followers, men with a like respect for the great need in preventing forest fires, depend upon him for guidance and direction.

Countless times personal matters are neglected to attend to duties of State. The men who follow him, likewise, sacrifice many precious hours and sometimes days that the forests may be kept free from devastation. Men that sacrifice that an ideal might be realized especially in the case where the ideal concerns and benefits all and many populated communities, deserves no little encouragement, and should receive from every man, woman and child a sincere appreciation.

It behooves all of us, then, who live within the bounds of the Penn Forest District, to look upon the untiring efforts of the forest fire warden as heroic; to help the man who sees in the ravaging, plundering forest fire a fierce enemy. His obligation points the way to a plain, unavoidable duty, and he should receive the hearty support and cooperation of all.

The forest fire warden is not only subject to call from towermen and other forest officers, but from anybody who might discover a fire and notify him. The fire tools he has collected together and kept in perfect shape are quickly loaded upon a truck. While he is doing this his good wife in many cases has notified the regular members of his crew by telephone of the fire. They are ready when he appears for a quick attack upon the flames. He notes almost at once upon arriving at the fire which way it is traveling, and quickly divides his men, attacking the head or "header."

If there is a wind and the fire has had a good start the warden may find he cannot handle it. A man is then dispatched for help, or possibly a towerman is watching the smoke, and after a reasonable length of time sees no let up, he quickly calls another warden and sends him with men to help.

Always on the fire line you will find the warden commanding and courteous, men are directed here and there where the best work can be done. Like a tireless machine he doggedly sticks until the fire is out. Then cautiously he selects a few men to patrol the line to avoid an outbreak.

The time of the men is carefully kept and submitted to the District Headquarters, along with report of the fire. The fire report contains time and location of the fire; estimated area and damage; cause of fire and party responsible; number of men employed, parties suffering damage as owners of the land. Along with this report a bill is submitted showing hours and rate; the name of each man employed; transportation; meals if any, and total cost of extinction.

The greater per cent of the forest fire wardens in the Penn Forest District are farmers living near the forest. To realize a profit he must give attention to his crops. Generally when the spring forest fire season is at its worst, the warden is confronted with a mountain of work on the farm. Likewise, in the fall of the year he is burdened with work when forest fires are most likely to occur. The compensation of his office is insufficient to pay him in a financial way for the time spent away from the farm. Except in extreme cases where a warden has at his command a picked and regular trained crew, he is paid but 40c per hour for actual time expended. We will assume he is a carpenter making 60c per hour. If a forest fire is discovered he is duty bound to go. His loss in a financial way is evident, besides the hardships and dangers attended in the extinction of the fire.

This brings to us, clear and distinct, the real object of the forest fire warden. Not the emoluments of his office, for this is but a dim haze in the background of his thoughts; not a slap on-the-back from the fickle public, but a deep devotion to an ideal. Uppermost in his mind is the thought that he can rise in the morning and see the forests green and hear the happy song from its depths, rather than look upon, with sore eyes and remorseful heart, a thing of nakedness, a black, gutted mass where nothing lives.

SPECIAL COURT

Hale and Burns Get Six Months in Jail for Bootlegging.

Eleven cases were disposed of at a special session of Court last Saturday morning. No very heavy sentences were imposed by Judge Quigley, with the exception of the cases of William Hale and William Burns, both of Julian, who had pleaded guilty to the charge of manufacturing moonshine whiskey in large quantities. Both were sentenced to pay a fine of $1 and costs, and to serve 6 months each in the county jail.

Other cases were as follows: Hillary Viard, of South Philipsburg, charged with violation of the liquor laws. Viard had once before been in the county jail on the charge of conducting a disorderly house, but evidence was submitted by substantial citizens of the town to show that except from this one slip from grace he had been leading an exemplary life. The Court sentenced him to pay a fine of $200 or be placed in the county jail for 3 months.

Clayton H. Krebs, of near State College, charged with the possession of intoxicating liquor, and operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, was sentenced to pay the costs and paorled for a period of 1 year. Krebs is a youth of 20, and was driving his widowed mother's car in Show Shoe, where he was employed at the time of his arrest.

Leslie Wands, of State College, was charged with being in the possession of and selling intoxicating liquor. Wands was running a livery stable at State College at the time of his arrest by Officer Mingle. The latter was not in Court and no evidence was forthcoming as to the charge of selling liquor, so in view of the facts the court sentenced him to pay the costs and paroled him for 1 year.

John Kolbol, of Munson, charged with the manufacture of moonshine whiskey was fined $200 and the costs and was given 3 months in which to pay them. Kolbol was proved to be a reputable citizen and had only made a little for his own use.

John McCreadie, Sr., and John McCreadie, Jr., both of Munson, the former charged with the manufacture of intoxicating liquor and the latter with the possession of it; received a suspended sentence.

Celia Haines (colored), of South Philipsburg, was charged with being in possession of a half-pint of whiskey. Sentenced suspended.

Elmer Menser, of Philipsburg, charged with operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent and smashing up same received a suspended sentence. The evidence showed that Menser had been employed by Frank Balistere, and simply stepped into the latter's car, which he had been in the habit of driving, to take a ride when the accident occurred. He was ordered to go to work and make some arrangements to pay for the damage done the Balistere car, which was a Buick sedan.

Andy Rusnock, of Snow Shoe, charged with operating a motor vehicle under a license not issued for that particular vehicle, was discharged upon payment of costs. Rusnok had recently purchased a new car and had not yet received a license for it. The lights on his old car having failed to work he transferred the plates from the old one to the new.

The case of Mrs. Harry Miller, of Boalsburg, charged with being in possession of and selling intoxicating liquor was ordered annulled by the Court. Several weeks ago State Policeman King went to the Miller home, saying he was sick, whereupon Mrs. Miller gave him a drink of wine. He then secured a search warrant and found 2 quarts in the house, whereupon he placed her under arrest. In ordering the case annulled the Court expressed his complete disapproval of the method used by the police in getting "evidence."

TO ELECTROCUTE WOMAN

Death Warrant Signed for Execution Last Week in October.

The first death warrant for the execution of a woman in Pennsylvania in many years was issued at Governor Pinchot's office, at Harrisburg, on Monday. It fixed the date for the execution of Louisa Thomas, convicted of murder in Philadelphia, for the week beginning Oct. 29.

The last woman executed in Pennsylvania was Sarah J. Whiteling, who was hanged June 25, 1899. Kate Edwards, Berks County, convicted of murder in the first degree in 1905, was pardoned after more than 12 years, the various Governors refusing to sign her death warrant.

BALLOT FOR PRESIDENT HAS 9 PARTY GROUPS

Two More Groups Than Were Placed in Field Four Years Ago

WOMAN FOR VICE PRES.

Pennsylvania voters will have nine national tickets to choose from when they go to the polls on November 4th. This number is two more than appeared on the presidential ballot four years ago.

In 1920 voters had their choice of the Republican, Democratic, Socialist, Prohibition, Industrialist, Labor and Single Tax parties. This year they will choose from among the Republican, Democratic, Socialist, Prohibition, Labor, Workers, Commonwealth Land, Industrialist and American parties. The name "Labor Party" was pre-empted by the La-Follette-Wheeler party while the Commonwealth Land Party is the successor of the Single Tax party. The name "American Party" was pre empted last February, while the Workers' party was on the ballot two years ago.

Each party is entitled to thirty-eight electors, but the Republican and Democratic parties, following a time honored custom, are the only two whose electors are chosen by Congressional districts, with two electors-at-large each. All other party electors are designated for the state-at-large. The Industrialist was the only party which failed to file a complete list of electors. The Socialist party, having endorsed LaFollette and Wheeler at its national convention, filed the same list of electors as the Labor party, the only two in which the electors are identical.

Miss Marie C. Brehm, of Long Beach, Cal., is the only woman who heads a national ticket this year in Pennsylvania. She is the vice presidential nominee of the Prohibition party.

Candidates for whom each of the lists of electors are pledged and who will head each ticket are:

Republican—Calvin Coolidge, president; Charles G. Dawes, vice-president.

Democratic—John W. Davis, president; Charles W. Bryan, vice-president.

Socialist—Robert M. LaFollette, president; Burton K. Wheeler, vice president.

Prohibition—Herman P. Faris, Missouri, president; Miss Marie G. Brehm, California, vice president.

Labor—Robert M. LaFollette, president; Burton K. Wheeler, vice president.

Commonwealth Land—William J. Wallace, New Jersey, president; J. G. Lincoln, Ohio, vice-president.

Industrialist—Frank T. Johns, Oregon, president; Verne L. Reynolds, Maryland, vice-president.

American—Gilbert O. Nations, District of Columbia, president; Leander L. Pickett, Kentucky, vice-president.

CHILD FATALLY SCALDED

Orviston Family Sadly Bereaved After Moving to New Home.

Mr. and Mrs. Forest Emenheizer, of Orviston, arrived at Flemington Monday afternoon to occupy their new home. With them were their three small children. Less than two hours after they had entered what was to be their new home, one of the children, Marlin, aged two years, was fatally scalded.

Mrs. Emenheizer had heated a bucket of water with the intention of scrubbing the floors in the house. The little boy, playing about the house, upset the water. He was taken to the Lock Haven hospital, where he died Monday evening.

Truck Hit By Train.

A wreck which might have resulted much more seriously than it did occurred on Sunday afternoon, when the valley passenger train which leaves Bellefonte at 3:30 P. M. struck a Ford truck at the end of the bridge at the old fair grounds below Bellefonte. The truck which was occupied by Charles and Edward Corman, of Bellefonte, was totally demolished. Charles sustained severe lacerations of the face and was the worst injured of the two. Edward was somewhat bruised, but not so badly cut as was his brother.

Killed by Live Wire.

Word was received by Clarence McCafferty last week of the electrocution at Harrisburg, of his brother-in-law, Ira Smith. The latter was a lineman and accidentally came in contact with a high voltage wire while at work, being killed almost instantly. He was married to Miss Bess McCafferty, formerly of Bellefonte. Her brother, Clarence, of Bellefonte, attended the funeral at Harrisburg on Friday.

URGE LOCAL FARMERS TO BREED BEST CATTLE

Movement to Expand Dairy Industry in Centre County.

PREDICT GOOD PROFIT

Believing that central Pennsylvania has a wonderful future as a dairy location, and that Centre County will share in the development of this profitable business, the Bellefonte Trust Company has decided to co-operate with the Sheffields Company in encouraging and assisting farmers to not only purchase but breed high grade cattle, exclusively. The initial step in the movement by the Bellefonte Trust Company is a formal announcement that it will make loans to the extent of $100,000 to Centre County farmers who are desirous of purchasing cattle and engaging in the dairy business.

The Sheffields Company is now operating milk stations at Jersey Shore, Howard and Bellefonte, having recently taken over the Western Maryland station at this place. The management of the company confidently states that this section is logically fitted to become a profitable dairy center, and that it will easily do so if properly developed. Some dissatisfaction existed among a number of farmers who acquired herds and furnished milk to the Western Maryland station, due to failure to carry out agreements or possibly to misunderstandings regarding rules and requirements. Under the management of the Sheffields Company it is hoped that the friendliest relations with farmers may be established and active co-operation secured that will be mutually profitable. Pending completion of various plans adopted by the Sheffields Company at its various stations, quite a number of Centre County farmers have deferred purchasing cattle. One of the requirements of the Sheffields Company is that certain sections of floors in barns be concreted and sanitary conditions be improved in every way possible. Quite a number of farmers have already had their barns remodeled to meet these requirements, and others are in the midst of such work. The latter will not purchase herds until they have their barns in readiness.

COUNCIL MEETS

Officer Glenn Quits Traffic Force Work on Sewer Extension.

At the regular semi-monthly meeting of the Boro. "fathers" on Monday evening, President John S. Walker was unable to be present and J. M. Cunningham occupied the chair. The session was very short and the following matters were discussed or disposed of:

Traffic officer George Glenn turned in his resignation to Secretary W. T. Kelly, to take effect immediately. Mr. Kelly was requested to notify the police department to make provision for the care of the children from the Bishop and Allegheny St. schools until the next meeting of Council, when a new traffic officer will be appointed, and also to request that the president of the school board use the janitors of the various buildings as temporary officers.

The water committee reported the removal of 15 more of the hopper type toilets, and that ten more persons had signified their intention of removing them in the near future. Also that the sewer extension in Spring creek, south of the High St. bridge, has been begun and will probably be completed this week.

The new fountain has arrived and will also be installed at the big spring this week.

The street committee stated that announcement will be inserted in the newspapers soon, to the effect that bids will be received for the paving of South Spring St., between Bishop and High Sts.

Invention May Yield Fortune.

The possibility that John Shultz, an employe of the American Lime & Stone Co., may reap great wealth from the proceeds of an automatic adjusting mechanism is regarded by his friends as highly encouraging. Mr. Shultz has entered into negotiations with a reputable firm of New York brokers whose specialty is the marketing and exploitation of new inventions. This firm, noted for conservatism, has held out hopes to the young inventor far beyond his expectations in the matter. The invention itself has no less than 12 uses. It can be used to automatically adjust belts of all kinds, as well as brakes on all manner of vehicles.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

"Caveat Emptor," as the Law Books Say

Grand Duke Cyril Vladimirovitch, cousin of the late czar and first in the present legal succession, now in Coburg, has issued a statement on the British loan to the soviet government. He warns that if a counter revolution puts the Reds out the loan will not be paid, not if he heads the new government, and probably not if a republic takes the place of the despotism.

He thinks the Red terror is transitory. He does not know what the succeeding form of government will be. It may be a republic. It will be, he says, eventually, what the people of Russia want it to be, and it will not be an oligarchy imposed by force.

"If I had so much as a ray of hope," he says, "that the impending loan would be used for the restoration of devastated Russia or the succor of her starving people, I should welcome this aid with delight without consideration of the hands of the Russian government through which it passed." He says he has no such hope. He says the loan will be used for the promotion of the Red cause and to give the Third Internationale power in Europe, Asia and Africa.

He warns that it will be repudiated by any government of which he is the head, if Russia returns to the dynasty, and he thinks that no truly national Russian government will recognize it.

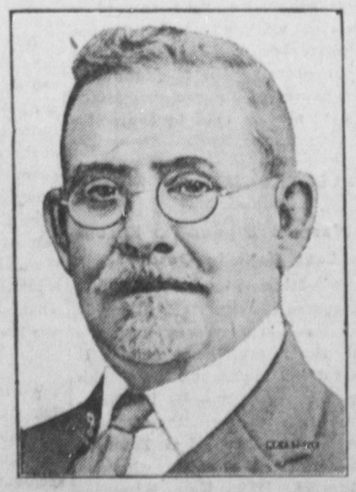
Juan V. Gomez, Dictator of Venezuela

The soundness of the government of Venezuela is based on the faith and trust of the people just as is the soundness of government anywhere. But here it is beyond doubt a faith in the power and continuity of the government of one man. Today this man is Juan Vincente Gomez. Yesterday it was another, tomorrow it may be a yet newer dictator. Gomez has given peace. He has given great business opportunity. He has made politics of the Latin American type unwise and unpopular. He has, in a measure, educated his people. All this, but tomorrow there would be a revolution if there was not apprehension of his power, and today there would be panic if there was not faith in his ability to survive, personally and politically. The menace seems to be only that there will be unfortunate times when he goes, until another dictator can rise in his place.

The comparison of the Venezuela of President Gomez to the Mexico of Porfirio Diaz is inevitable. General Gomez is of a later school. In many ways he is following a wiser course than General Diaz. He has a better constitution, for a dictatorship, than had Diaz. The saying goes in Venezuela that the administration of President Gomez rests firmly on a tripod—the three feet are the sound position of the national finances, the army, and the friendship of the United States.

President Vasquez to Show the World



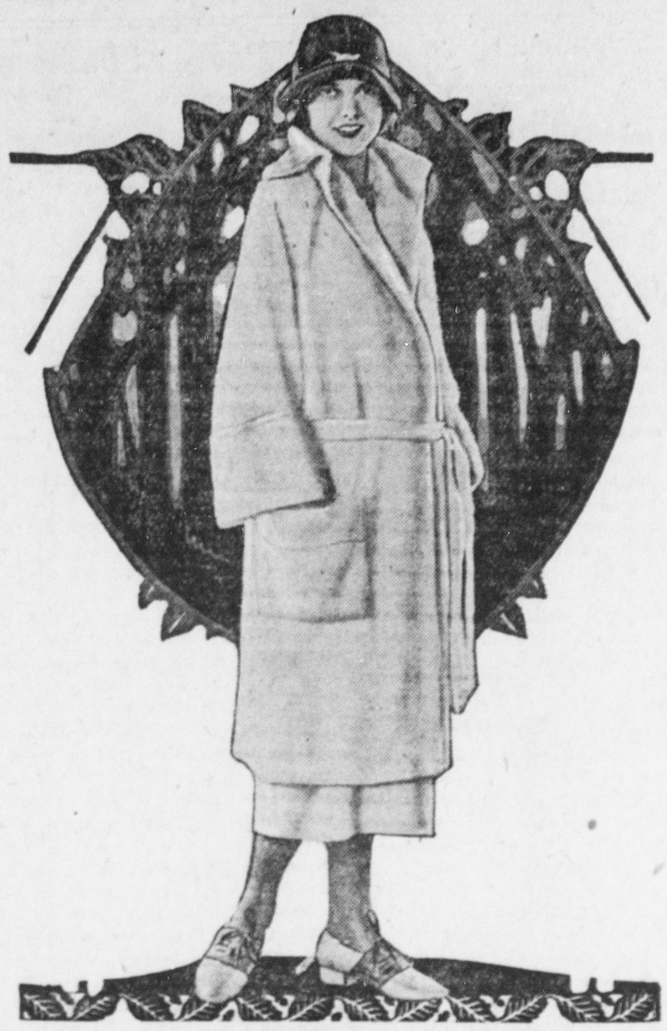
It is up to Gen. Horacio Vasquez, the new President of Santo Domingo, to show the world that he and his people can govern themselves. Eight years ago the republic was in such a mess that President Jiminez sent out a distress signal to the United States. Thereupon Uncle Sam took control. Now, after eight years, he is getting out, bag and baggage. It cost the lives of many of the United States marines, but in many respects it has remade the country. Santo Domingo now has good roads connecting the principal towns, hospitals, sanitation systems and other modern improvements. There is a treasury department and the foreign debt has been reduced to $13,000,000. A native police force of some thousands has been organized and trained. American methods of education have been inaugurated.

Is Santo Domingo grateful? Probably not. It is a fairly good guess, in the opinion of experts, that Uncle Sam has no real friends anywhere south of the Rio Grande and Key West. Oddly enough, there are Americans, who hold that the United States' occupation has not been justified and that it should also get out of Haiti at once.

TOPCOATS OF BRUSH WOOL; SOME PRETTY ACCESSORIES

FASHION'S latest? Luxurious topcoats knitted of downy brushed wool. White is first selection, for the all-white ensemble of wrap and hat is making smart appeal this season.

Among the handsomest white coats for immediate wear, the knitted kind are especially fetching in appearance. Representative of this new vogue for the all-white coat is the three-quarter length model shown in the picture. It is exquisitely soft and downy, knitted as it is of brushed wool according to latest style mandate. Of course, if one prefers, one may purchase this coat in any of the leading new shades, for brilliant color, as well as white, is being featured throughout all knitted outerwear this fall. Lanvin green, titian browns, grays and tans are all popular.



HANDSOME WHITE COAT

The favor, however, for white knitted togs is evident to a marked degree. In the way of a jacquette, nothing is of more fascinating appeal than those knitted of snowy white lightweight brushed wool, collared generously with sheered wool, which bears a very close resemblance to fur.

White knitted scarf and hat sets are also very popular. Worn with a coat similar to the model here pictured, the ensemble proves most entrancing.

Typical of the prevailing all-white mode are the swagger knitted suits, some of which consist of skirt and three-quarter length coat. Others stress the long knitted coat posed over a straightline one-piece dress, also knitted. Handsome effects are variously expressed by bordering plain mohair knit-coats and skirts with bands of brushed wool. Sheered or clipped zephyr or yarn trimmings on brushed wool strikes a really new note of interest in knitted fashions.

White pull-over sweaters, long since an important factor in knitted outerwear, bid fair to "keep on keeping on" along their course of popularity. These are worn with plaited white cloth skirts, and for outdoor sports they are ideal if worn with knickers.

The shops abound with fascinating dress accessories—scarfs, collars, vestees, girdles, bracelets, costume jewelry and all sorts of pretty furbelows. With a vogue for the limit of simplicity in frocks all these become more and more important, taking on new responsibilities. We must look to them to give character and distinction to simple dresses—as much alike as buttons—but happily admitting of much variation by means of accessories.

Neckwear is the foremost of the telltale finishing touches that make (or fail to make) the success of the daytime frock. It is shown in sheer and dainty collar and cuff sets, vestees and bibs of fine batiste, embroidered or plain, and usually made up with lace, also in net and lace combinations. The fine lace collar, in round or long developments, never made its imperishable class and beauty more strongly felt, but even the least expensive collars share with it the charm of freshness and wholesome daintiness.

Boudoir and breakfast caps still assemble laces, nets, ribbons, chiffons and tiny flowers into confections that will put any beholder in a good humor. One of them is pictured here made of dotted swiss—used for the crown—gathered into a wide band of lace and finished with a net frill. There is a twist of narrow ribbon at each side of the band, which straightens itself out to make a frivolous double bow at the nape of the neck. A little silk jacket worn with it employs crepe de chine in any light color and looks to val lace and satin ribbon for the prettiest embellishment. By way of being amusing it has an absurd but captivating pocket.

FASCINATING ACCESSORIES

The little cap of narrow ribbons tied together is a "wave retainer" for the bobbed-haired girl—or anyone else who must look to the beauty parlor for wavy locks.

Telephone for the Deaf

Use of the cheekbone as a conductor to the auditory nerve, coupled with the amplification of speech, has produced a telephone for the deaf. Persons who have not heard for years are said to be able to receive long-distanc messages through this apparatus, which is being tested by the department of telephones of the Saskatchewan government.—Popular Science Monthly.

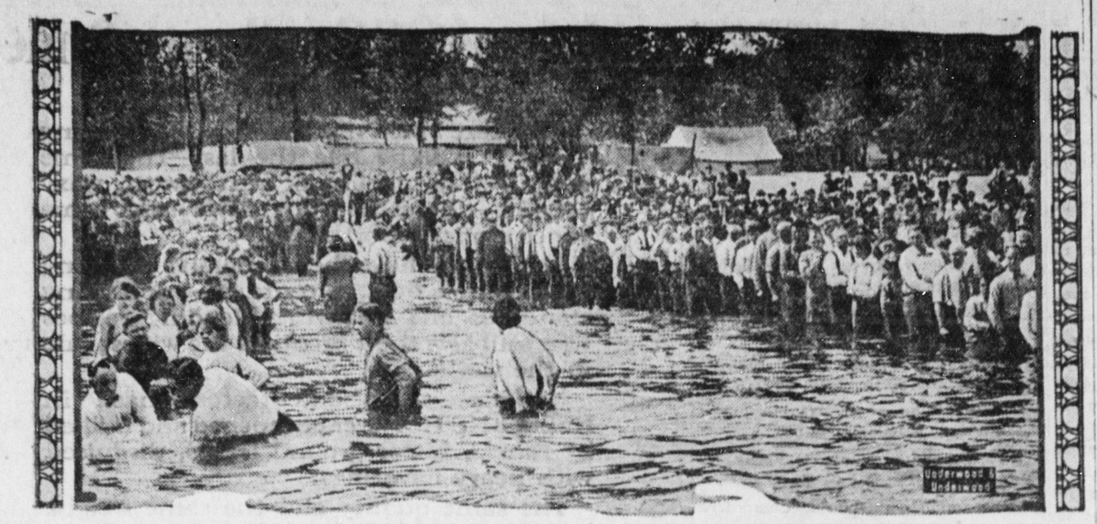
Throng of Converts Baptized in the Columbia



About 230 men, women and children were baptized in the Columbia river near Portland, Ore., the other day by ministers of the Apostolic Faith, while many hundreds of spectators looked on. After the ceremony all returned to the camping grounds near by for the ordinances of the Lord's Supper and the footwashing.

Cordova Is Possible Alaska Naval Base

City Has Another "Scapa Flow" at Its Door

Washington. — Since the United States army airmen flew to Asia along the Aleutian island chain and emphasized what navigators have known all along—that the shortest way across the Pacific is by the "Great Circle route" near Alaska—there has been a growing recognition of the need of a naval base in Alaskan waters. Cordova, most recently mentioned as a possible selection, is described in a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society as "a sort of American Kirkwall, since it has Alaska's Scapa Flow at its door."

"Cordova is on Cordova bay, a deep, commodious, well-protected harbor itself," says the bulletin. "But that is only the beginning of harbor facilities. Just around an island corner is Orca bay, also an excellent haven; and Orca is a vestibule to Prince William sound, Alaska's Scapa Flow.

Alaska's "Scapa Flow."

"Here is a huge anchorage, bulwarked from the Pacific by islands, dotted with others, and with its margins opening up into great fjords which spread out in every direction like the tentacles of an octopus. Many navies could float in the open waters of Prince William sound; or, if unusual weather conditions brought rough water beyond its island bulwark, could find snug, peaceful havens in its fjords or behind its high islands.

"Prince William sound can be oriented by the fact that its waters form the extreme northeastern corner of the Pacific ocean. The oceanward line of Alaska's 'pan-handle' extends roughly in a straight line to the northwest, and this line is continued to the innermost part of Prince William sound. There the corner is formed, and the general direction of the coastline veers off at right angles to extend into the Alaska peninsula and sweep off along the Aleutians toward Asia. A group of islands has fenced this corner off and made a huge deep-water sound out of it.

"The town of Cordova has not yet reached its majority, but it has become the modest metropolis of the Prince William sound region, though several of its competitors are well over a score of years old. Unlike most Alaskan towns, Cordova was made by copper, not gold. It is the port for the rich copper mines of the Copper river and the coast terminus of the Copper River & Northwestern railway, the first railroad of considerable length to be built in Alaska. The town is not at the mouth of the Copper river, being situated some twenty miles farther west along the coast. The river develops a broad, marshy delta, whose coast is without harbor sites.

"The need of Alaska for railroads was dramatically illustrated by the situation in the Copper River valley. Vastly rich copper mines existed 200 miles up the valley, but even pure copper nuggets (one weighing three tons was discovered) could not be brought out save at a cost greater than their value. The first train from the mines in 1911 carried 250,000 tons of ore to Cordova; and in one week in 1916 the port shipped ore worth more than $7,000,000—about the price paid to Russia by the United States in 1867 for the entire territory.

"Cordova and Valdez, its neighboring competing port, are two of the very few survivals of the Spanish names given to Alaskan places by early Spanish navigators. For, though it is not generally known, the Spaniards considered Alaska their own, possibly following out the somewhat inclusive claims of Balboa, who, when he waded into the Pacific off the Isthmus of Panama, asserted that he was taking possession of all lands washed by the ocean, from pole to pole. In common with numerous places given Russian designations by the Muscovite owners of the region, the features named by the Spanish discoverers were blithely renamed by Cook, who came later on the scene, and by Vancouver. Prince William sound was originally Chugach gulf, the Copper river was Rio de los Perdides (River of the Lost or Damned), and Resurrection bay, to the west, was Voskressevski harbor.

"The Prince William sound region, in the same latitude as that of southern Norway, has a fairly mild climate. The harbors of Cordova and Valdez are open all winter; the average winter weather, in fact, is no more severe than that of Washington, D. C. The shores of the sound are heavily wooded. Altogether this great sound covers an extent of more than twenty-five hundred square miles."

Ibex Sighted in Alaska

Fijians Also Have Their Blue Laws

Aid Religion by Charging Tourists for Dances.

Levuka, Fiji Islands.—The natives of Fiji have their Sunday blue laws, and keep them, too.

The drinking places are closed tight on Sunday.

The streets are deserted while everybody attends religious services for several hours, pausing only for lunch.

The meke-meke, or native dance, is no longer given publicly. With such reverence do these South Sea Islanders hold their religious teachings and worship that they are induced only with great difficulty to give an exhibition of former barbaric rites and ceremonies before tourists. The meke-meke has been commercialized; no longer is it given gratuitously, but tourists must pay from $50 to $100 for each dance. All the proceeds go to the church.

When 60 Americans who were touring the South seas recently came ashore to be entertained by the native dancers, they found the village streets deserted. Nowhere, not even beneath the coconut trees, was a Fijian to be seen. Several of the more timid women in the party voiced their fear that the natives were hiding and about to rush upon them and kill them all.

Finally a broad-shouldered native was seen. One of the Americans asked him where his chief and people were.

"I understand you perfectly, sir," he replied in good English. "It has been many years since Fiji was ruled by a chief. Fiji is a British colony, sir."

"The people are attending religious services," he replied, to the manager's question about the absence of the people.

Two hours later the sandy streets of the village were crowded with natives returning from church for lunch. They took little notice of the tourists, and at 3 o'clock returned for religious services. When asked to give a meke-meke, the answer to all entreaties was simply:

"The Sabbath is for worship and rest, not for pleasure."

Although only 40 years ago Cakabau, the great cannibal king, reigned, and the killing and eating of human beings was then a common practice, 95 per cent of the 88,000 native inhabitants of the Fiji Islands are Christians today, according to missionary workers.

Old Tepee Is Popular

Eatonville, Wash.—A huge tepee built in early pioneer days on Tanwax lake still stands and in perfect condition. Hundreds of tourists daily gather around the famous council fire.

Squaw Is 120 Years Old, Records Show

Yosemite, Calif.—Apparently authentic records indicate "Indian Lucy," a squaw living in the Yosemite valley is 120 years old. She is believed to be one of the oldest women in the world.

Lucy lives in a typical Indian tepee not far from Camp Curry, but keeps out of sight of the tourists. She has difficulty in walking, but otherwise retains full possession of her faculties.

She can remember clearly the events of 100 years ago. She was living in the valley when the first white men made their entrance and finds pleasure in relating the details of their occupation.

Family Tree of the Mighty Pen

Bone Stylus, Recently Discovered, Believed to Be Oldest Writing Tool.

Washington.—"Bebe Norris of New York, N. Y., is a stenographer, A. D. 1924. She doesn't trace her blood lineage to ancient Babylon. But Bebe had what might be called a 'professional grandmother,' a hundred or so times removed—Bibea Narem, by name—who did precisely the same sort of work as Bebe's for a prominent merchant in Mesopotamia's greatest city more than two thousand years before Christ.

"When Bibea's boss clapped his hands or made whatever signal Babylonian bosses made in place of pressing a buzzer button, Bibea grabbed her stenographic 'pad,' picked up a stylus and hurried in to take dictation.

"'Murashu Sons, Murashu Building, Nippur; Honored Gentlemen,' probably began the dictator, addressing the historic banking firm which held the place in Babylonia that the Rothschilds have held in Europe.

"As her employer dictated Bibea rapidly jabbed her stylus into the soft clay of her little 'pad.' For like all her stenographic sisters of 4,000 years ago, Bibea was literally a 'pencil pusher.' The stylus was a little rod of bone about six inches long, triangular in cross-section, cut off sharply at one end so that when this end was pressed into damp clay it left wedge-shaped impressions."

World's Oldest Pen.

Such a bone stylus, described in dispatches from Bagdad as "the oldest known pen" has just been dug up on the site of the ancient city of Kish and gives archeologists one of their best specimens of the tool with which the priceless cuneiform tablets of Babylonia and Assyria were made. The discovery of this stylus led the National Geographic society, in the bulletin quoted above, to reconstruct with actual names and facts gleaned from other recent discoveries, a scene in a typical business office of 40 centuries ago."

The discovery of the bone stylus at Kish, the bulletin points out, discloses a class of implements that has been more important to the development of civilization than perhaps any other group of tools.

"Man is even more truly distinguished as a 'writing animal' than as a 'speaking animal,'" continues the bulletin, "for it is the growing fund of knowledge set down on various surfaces by various implements and so passed on to generation after generation that has made possible development in the arts, sciences and industries. Back of the Kish stylus are more primitive members of the pen family; chisels to cut into stone and wooden tablets, thorns to scratch on hides, flint splinters with which to furrow cave walls, bones and sticks with which to make probably the first rude marks of all in sand or dirt. In a parallel line, stretch back the fewer ancestors of the pencil, bits of lead, lumps of chalk and soft earths, and the ends of charred sticks.

"The descendants of the Babylonian stylus and the scratching tools that preceded it present a startling array of implements and mechanisms. In China and Egypt paper and papyrus were invented to supersede the cruder and heavier writing surfaces and the great forward step was made of applying a third substance, ink, by means of a brush or pen. The Egyptian reed pen made of a hollow tubular stem may be looked upon as the direct ancestor of the modern pen. It had practically the form of its present-day descendant, being pointed and slit to make it pliable.

"The early Greeks and Romans, however, did not use any material comparable to paper. They first scribbled with chalk on broken bits of pottery, or scratched with pointed metal rods on wooden blocks. Their next step was to cover the blocks with wax and scratch their messages in that material. Their styli had knobs on one end used to smooth out erroneous marks. New wax could be applied and the tablets used over and over. The metal styli were truly as mighty as swords, serving as daggers when desired. Julius Caesar is said to have been stabbed to death with such pens.

From Flint Splinter to Printing Press.

"When papyrus reached Greece and Italy the reed pen and the use of ink went with it. This combination was also used in writing on sheepskin parchment and vellum, and in the hands of slaves, and later monkish copyists, went into the making of the world's most highly prized illuminated manuscripts and hand-wrought books.

"Quills, chiefly from goose feathers, furnished the next source for improved pens. Not until the Nineteenth century did detachable metal pen points come into general use and shoulder quills out. Now something like three million gross of them are made yearly in the United States alone.

"The steel and gold pens and even the latest models of fountain pens do not complete the pen genealogy. The far-off bit of bone or flint used by the less dumb savage who recorded an unimportant event many thousand years ago was truly the original ancestor of our typewriters, our etching needles, the light rays and acids we have harnessed to make our halftones, and the gigantic, thunderous printing presses that grind out their millions of newspapers, magazines and books."

ODD NATURAL GROWTH

Here is the strange natural growth, in the form of a giraffe, which is outside the village general store at Munsonville, N. H. It is composed of the growths of two trees. The body and legs are of one tree and the neck and head from another. The only artificial work done was the chiseling out of the eyes and mouth.

Most Fugitives in Losing Game

Generally Flee to Distant City, Hoping Search by Police Will End.

New York.—How does it feel to be hunted by the police?

After a man has committed a murder and he knows that he is suspected or is likely to be, he probably will go as far away from the city of the crime as his funds will permit. He prefers a strange city, or one in which he has few friends. In such a city he decides he can wait until the police get tired of looking for him.

If he decides not to seek safety in flight from a big city like New York he persuades friends to harbor him. He remains indoors during the daytime. His friends keep him informed of the progress made by the police on the case, and if they find the trail is getting warm he moves to other quarters. He remains in hiding until he feels it is safe to flee to a distant city.

Prefer Cities to Small Towns.

Most criminals, when in flight, prefer cities to small towns and villages. A stranger in a sizable city attracts little or no attention. But in a small town the residents are curious to know all about strangers.

A young holdup man, sitting in the detectives' room of a station here after being captured, told of his experiences after fleeing from a western city, where he had committed a robbery. His train stopped for repairs at a small station. He decided the peaceful village was just the place where his pursuers would never look for him, so he dropped off the train and entered the station to get a drink of water. He had first slaked his thirst when a police circular on a wall attracted his attention. He thought it strange to find a circular in such an out-of-the-way place, and curious to see whose picture it bore, walked to it. To his surprise, it carried an excellent likeness of himself. He was glad that the train was still at the station and, as he hopped aboard he resolved that henceforth he would stick to the cities. But although he kept his resolution, he got into the toils after all.

Another youth eluded the police for a year, visiting a dozen large cities and doubling on his tracks more than once. It was rough going. The police gave him little peace of mind. Once he barely escaped them by jumping out of a window, and was laid up for several weeks. Later he made his home in a quiet little hotel. Just as he was beginning to think the police had given up the pursuit, he recognized a detective who had arrested him a year or two earlier. The detective happened to be engrossed in a newspaper in the lobby. The youth lost no time in checking out.

"I've Got You at Last!"

As the months slipped by, the constant strain he was under began to affect his health. He was unable to sleep at night. A knock at the door, or the voice of a stranger, sent a shiver along his spine. He in time became suspicious of everybody. He finally told himself he was going insane, then plucked up courage. It was late spring, and perhaps the balmy weather had something to do with his returning spirits. Deciding it was foolish to worry, he went to a ball game one afternoon and was rooting for his favorite team when a hand was laid upon his shoulder. Glancing around, he recognized the detective. "Well, son," the latter remarked, "you have led me a great chase, but I've got you at last. You can see the game out if you like; then, I reckon, you'll have to be a good boy and come along." The youth was glad, nevertheless, that the chase had ended and with it the prospect that he would lose his mind.

The fugitive often resorts to disguise. Realizing that the police circular, besides carrying his likeness, will describe him physically, he attempts to appear different. Hence, if he is clean-shaven he sometimes will grow a moustache or a beard. He has been known to dye his hair and stain his face, and if he has a scar that he can conceal by letting his hair grow long he will do so. If he may be recognized by some peculiarity of dress, he does not hesitate to change his mode of attire completely.

But the average fugitive from justice plays a losing game. He is pretty sure to be caught eventually, as the police receive information of the whereabouts of criminals from many sources.

LUMINOUS ORE DISCOVERED BY AN ACCIDENT AT A MINE

Lamp Goes Out and Mineral Glow Causes Owners to Call Government Expert.

Loveland, Colo.—The fact that the oil-burning lamp of Oliver Frantz and the Strong brothers became extinguished on account of lack of oil may lead to a startling discovery. The men, on a recent night, were examining some ore dug from their mine. The lamp went out, and in the darkness some of the dust from the specimens dropped on the hot stove.

Immediately the room was made as light as day, caused from the flare from the mineral, which is believed to be a radium-bearing ore. Government authorities were immediately notified and the shaft closed until an investigation is made.

The mine is on Storm peak, 22 miles from Loveland and 4 miles from the main Loveland-Estes Park road. It can be reached by horseback from the Half Way place. The shaft is 40 feet deep and the ore mined is a mixture of pitchblende, fluorspar and carnite ore.

The owners estimate that it will be two weeks before they can reach the main vein of the ore. If the ore is radium bearing it may explain in a measure the reason for the terrific electric storms that prevail in that district and which have led to the naming of that peak Storm peak, due to the affinity of the electricity in the air for the radium.

Volcano Belches Soot

Kodiak, Alaska.—Accused of about every accomplishment accredited to volcanoes, Mount Katmai, Alaska's most conspicuous peak, is sending out a volume of pure, unadulterated soot. This black substance sticks to everything it encounters, discoloring the nice, green forests miles away and blackening the rivers flowing down Katmai's slopes. Recently a brown grizzly was shot, which had been near the soot fall and was supposed to be a monster black animal until the color began to come off on the hands and clothes of the hunters.

Avoids Precipice, Hits Cliff

Paris.—To avoid falling, with 23 tourists, over a precipice on the route known as the Grand Corniche, between Nice and Monte Carlo, the driver of a motor charabanc, the brakes of which failed to act, turned the vehicle against the cliffs bordering one side of the road. The shock was frightful, most of the passengers being hurled against the rocks or thrown into the roadway. All were more or less seriously injured and were conveyed to the nearest hospital in private cars that happened to be passing. One of the tourists died later from fracture of the skull.

It is better to be fast asleep than slow when awake.

"Y" MEMBERSHIP CANVASS

Assistant State Secretary to Direct Drive in Bellefonte.

C. F. Fought, one of the secretaries of the State Y. M. C. A., will be in Bellefonte next week to direct the membership canvass which has been planned for sometime past, but held off on account of other drives. The Board feel that they have right of way now, and, as the fall work is opening up, with the new physical director in charge of the gymnasium classes and recreative games, that this is the time to seek new memberships. The committees appointed by the president of the board are working energetically to make this season the best ever in the history of the Y. M. C. A.

The bowling league will have two divisions, running a national and an American League, using the familiar titles associated with the same. The physical director is lining up teams for an industrial basket ball league. The floor will be reserved three evenings in the week, from 8 o'clock, for basket ball and this will be one of the attractive sports around the Y this year.

The Board of Directors will meet this week and will have some interesting announcements relative to the membership and privileges offered to those who secure their memberships now.

The first meeting of the fall season of the Women's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. will be held at the Y. M. C. A. rooms on Saturday evening, Sept. 20th, at 7.30 o'clock. It is urged that a full attendance be present as the winter program is to be discussed.

At the weekly services conducted at the jail last Sunday afternoon, Rev. C. C. Shuey spoke and special music was rendered by Mrs. William Straub and Mrs. Paul Emerick. The prisoners seem to appreciate the services held there, which are conducted under the direction of the Y. M. C. A. and special committees appointed.

OVER THE COUNTY

The Brungart reunion, held at Brungart church in Penns valley last week, proved to be, as predicted, the biggest and one of the most successful affairs of the kind ever held in Central Pennsylvania. Near 500 descendants of Martin Brungart, the original settler, were present.

Another dead doe was discovered in the vicinity of Coburn last week, on the farm of Milton Stover. Mr. Stover went out for his cows in the evening and discovered the doe with a bullet in her body, lying on the ground. Local game protectors were notified, but failed to discover any clues as to the law-breaker.

While in the act of making an x-ray picture of a broken bone in the arm of Dorothy Reed, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James G. Reed, of Boalsburg, a patient in the local hospital, something became wrong with the apparatus and a terrific discharge of electricity came from the machine, knocking the child to the floor and bruising her severely.

A reorganization of the sections of the L. & T. railroad has recently been announced by officials of the P. R. R. The 8 sections, formerly taken care of by as many track crews, have been reduced to 5. This will naturally throw a number of men out of employment, but under the seniority system prevailing on the P. R. R., the men themselves do not know yet who will be the ones to go after the "bumping" is under way. An order has also been issued to close the Linden Hall station, where Frank Ishler has been agent for many years. The order is being protested by residents of that section and no definite action has yet been made.

Jimmy Murphy Killed.

Jimmy Murphy, who held the world's record on the automobile track, and winner at both events this year on the Altoona speedway, was killed in a race at Syracuse, N. Y., on Monday. After completing the 138th lap of the 150 mile race, his machine crashed into a fence. He lived but a few minutes.

FARM CALENDAR

Timely Reminders From The Pennsylvania State College.

DIGGING SPUDS

Don't be in too great a hurry to dig potatoes before they are thoroughly ripened. Allow the uncovered spuds to remain in the field only long enough for them to dry and then hustle them to the storage bins where they should be kept from the light.

APPLE POMACE SILAGE

After the cider is squeezed from apples the remaining pomace makes excellent cattle feed and may be used either fresh from the press or put in the silo and fed later. This is apparently to be a poor corn silage year and all substitutes are worth considering, including grass of any kind, millet, clover, alfalfa and soy beans.

PEACHBORER CONTROL

Those peach tree owners who have never used paradichlorobenzene for the control of the peach tree borer, will do well to consider its use immediately. There are only about 2 weeks left for the safe use of this chemical. The county agent will give information as to its use.

POULTRY SHOWS

If you are planning to exhibit any of your birds at poultry shows this fall it may be well to give them a training period of three or four weeks. Trained birds always command the attention of the judges. Above all, be sure to get your entry blank in on time

RHUBARB PLANTS

Before the rhubarb stalks die off it is a good plan to go through them and mark those outstanding plants for division and replanting this fall. Some care in selection can be made when digging and roots showing crown rot disease can be thrown out.

FALL PIGS

The way the hog market has been acting recently and the knowledge that there is a smaller number of swine in the country than usual, makes one feel that fall pigs are going to be good property next spring and summer. The wise farmer who is fortunate enough to have some sows bred for fall farrow will take good care of the fall pig crop and do everything possible to save a large per cent and grow them out rapidly.

10,000 Children Starving.

The workers in the American organization for Near East Relief went through a terrible ordeal in July. The committee had been embarrassed for some time by the fact that, on the strength of receiving large contributions, starving children, with absolutely no one to support them, were taken into the orphanges. Trusting to a continuation of the generosity of the American people, the logical hope was that these children would be kept in the orphanages, where each one was taught a productive trade until the time for undertaking their own support. This trust was misplaced. Large contributions have not been continued. Children must be fed every day of the year and the food must be paid for. This meant that when the support was discontinued the men and women in charge were compelled to turn out some of the children. The fact is that in July of this year 10,000 children not yet capable of self-care were sent away from the only shelter possible for them. Try to imagine, please, the feelings of the workers who did the turning out. September and October are the most difficult months. Funds are very low, the fall campaigns have not begun to produce. This simply means that the tragedy of July will have to be repeated at no distant time if America is not aroused to the rescue. Any money sent to Charles M. McCurdy, Bellefonte, Treasurer for Centre County Near East Relief, will be forwarded to headquarters where it will be much appreciated at this crucial time.

Immersed in Beech Creek.

Several persons were immersed in the stream at Beech Creek last Sunday afternoon in accordance with the custom of the Holiness church, by a visiting evangelist who first delivered a sermon on the bank of the creek where devotional exercises were held by members of this faith. A large crowd witnessed the immersion.

HOGGING-OFF HOGS PAYS

Centre County Farmers Urged to Adopt Fattening Methods.

"There is no guess-work connected with the fact that it pays farmers to allow hogs to harvest a part of the corn crop where corn is the principal food," says Dr. H. H. Havner, extension Swine specialist at the Penna. State College.

The hogging-off corn season is about here and the County Agent urges all Centre County farmers who can do it, to follow the economical method of fattening for the fall market. The ones that do best in the corn fields are thin, active pigs, weighing from 90 to 125 pounds that have been developed on good pasture with a good growing ration. Following is a good rule to remember in determining how many pigs to turn into a field or how much corn to supply a bunch of pigs.

Nine average pigs will clear up an acre of corn in about as many days as there are bushels of corn per acre and gain about 1½ pounds per day. The pigs should be allowed a portion of a field large enough for them to clean up in from 3 to 4 weeks. Wire fencing will keep them out of the other part of the field. Protein foods should be supplied while pigs are in the field.

$5 BILLS IDENTIFY HIM

Banker Fryberger Showed Magistrate Signature on Banknotes.

Presumably, John E. Fryberger, cashier of the First National Bank, of Philipsburg, is referred to in a Coatesville despatch, in Philadelphia newspapers, of Monday. Five dollar bills, the despatch says, were used by Mr. Fryberger as identification cards when he appeared before Justice of the Peace R. Jones Patrick, at Coatesville, to answer a charge of exceeding speeding regulations. The banker had mislaid his driver's license card and was at a loss to identify himself. Suddenly he pulled out a wallet and laid down several brand new $5 bills.

"There's my signature on the bottom of each bill," he said.

"Sign your name on a piece of paper," requested the justice.

The signatures were identical and Fryberger escaped by paying the costs.

BEECH-NUT chewers don't switch.

The next batch of BEECH-NUT Chewing Tobacco will be like the last—the same quality and quantity of pure, sweet, waxy tobacco—the same bully flavor—the same super money's worth.

Lorillard's have been making chewing tobacco for over a century — upholding standards and following blending recipes that still give their products the widest sale in the world.

No pipe scrap and factory hash in BEECH-NUT. Never cheapened and bulked by rancid, bitter ground leaves, disguised with heavy flavorings.

The same quality and the same weight in 1924 as in 1915, despite increased taxes, overhead, wages and tobacco prices.

10c swells its chest every time it buys a package.

Is it any wonder that over 250 million packages are sold in a single year?

9 CADETSHIPS OPEN

Competitive Examinations for Pa. National Guardsmen.

Nine appointments to the United States Military Academy at West Point have been alloted to the Pennsylvania National Guard enlisted men passing examinations which will be held at Harrisburg in November, according to a notice received from the War Department by Adjutant General Frank D. Beary. This is the largest number ever given to the Keystone State's Guardsmen, and arrangements will be made for holding the examination in the hall of the House of Representatives between Nov. 1 and 15.

"Enlisted men desiring to take the examinations must have served 1 year and be between 19 and 22 years of age and unmarried," said General Beary. "They should apply, after asking permission, to my office, when information as to the details of the examination will be furnished.

"The last 2 years Pennsylvania has entered Guardsmen at West Point, and I would like to see a big class try for the appointments this year."

Egg Production Record.

The record in egg production is in the making by the flock owned by the Lone Oak Poultry Farm, of Emporium, according to D. M. Gray, poultry extension specialist of the Pennsylvania State College, who has just visited the farm. From the first of November to the first of August, this flock of White Leghorns has produced an average of 162 eggs per bird. If the present rate of production is maintained, the flock will probably average 185 eggs for the year and will be one of the highest producing flocks in Pennsylvania. Fifteen hens have laid over 200 eggs and are still going strong. One outstanding bird has produced 234 eggs and has over two months to go before she completes her laying year. Every bird on the farm is trap-nested so that the exact production is recorded. This enables the manager to eliminate the "boarder hen" or the one that is producing small or off-colored eggs.

To Put Wires Underground.

Officials at the Bellefonte aviation field are arranging to place all telephone and electric light wires, for a distance of about 800 feet, along the State highway, at the landing field, in underground tubes. The advisability of removing all overhead wires nearby the aviation field has long been apparent to both aviators and officials. Planes landing at the field are frequently in danger of becoming entangled in overhead wires, causing serious accidents. Before the wires may be placed underground, however, approval must be secured from the State Public Service Commission and the State Highway department.

Car Smashed on Mountain.

The Hudson sedan owned by Joseph Thomas, and driven by his son, Lester, of Bellefonte, was badly damaged last Wednesday evening when the car skidded into a concrete culvert and turned over, while on the way from Philipsburg to Bellefonte. The accident happened just this side of Sandy Ridge and the car was towed into a Philipsburg garage for repairs. Several persons who occupied the car escaped injury. The car was badly damaged.

There was a very large attendance of relatives, friends and citizens, also surviving comrades of the deceased in the Civil war, and World war veterans. Members of the Bitner-Bechdel post, American Legion, acted as casket-bearers, and formed the firing squad at the grave, honoring this deceased veteran of the Civil war with military burial. Bennett—Boyer Bout.

Monday evening's meeting of the Boggs Twp. School Board developed a heated skirmish between Erv. Bennett, of Runville, and J. T. Boyer, of Milesburg. On Tuesday Bennett met Boyer at Milesburg, and asserting that he had been insulted by him proceeded to beat him up so badly that Boyer later consulted an attorney. There has been considerable dissension in Boggs Twp. over erecting a new school building for some time past.

would be a violation of the law for anybody to take convicts beyond the prison boundaries without a proper permit. She protested, it is said, that as the wife of the superintendent she had the right to take the convicts with her, but after some deliberation she abandoned the trip. The convicts, it is said, wore civilian clothing, but, even so, had they accompanied Mrs. Stutzman to Bellefonte they would have been recognized, immediately arrested and lodged in jail. Mrs. Stutzman would have been summoned as a witness in the proceedings.

Presumably, some who have been forced out during the last year or so have begun to fight back, and it will not be surprising if the next Legislature is asked to conduct a thorough investigation, not only of conditions at Rockview but at Pittsburgh. It is said that charges of extravagance in the maintenance of Supt. Stutzman's home at Rockview have been before the Board of Inspectors, at Pittsburgh, for some time. A half-dozen, or more, servants have been employed there, at high wages, it is said, in addition to service rendered by convicts. Another accusation said to have been lodged with the Board of Inspectors is that vegetables sold by the prison to green grocers in Bellefonte have later been purchased by the prison for use at the Stutzman residence. That the system at Rockview could be handled in so haphazard a manner seems incredible, but nevertheless such a report has been current for weeks past. Although the state owns a large number of cattle at Rockview, it is necessary for the prison to buy milk at times, it is said.

Apparently a very low percentage of service has been secured from the convicts during the last six months. It is a notorious fact that the yield from the prison farms has been so small as to excite derision. Those in actual charge of the farm work have done the best they could under the circumstances, but they have been unable to compel the convicts to produce results. When the State police arrived at Rockview, following the escape of seven or eight convicts in one day, a large part of the wheat crop was still in the fields. This prompted the State police to order every convict out to work, despite Supt. Stutzman's protest that many of them were in the hospital and physically unable to do manual labor. Since that time, it is said, attention has been called to the condition of the oats and potato crops. Much of the oats was planted so late that it had no chance to develop, and many acres were not even planted.

Equally striking is the situation regarding the potato crop. Seed potatoes of the highest grade were secured from the Pennsylvania State College. Planting was so delayed at Rockview that many stalks are now up not more than six inches, and experienced farmers predict the yield will not exceed 75 bushels per acre. The same seed potatoes, at the Pennsylvania State College farms, are yielding upward of 375 to 400 bushels per acre.

That the prison farms, at one time regarded as among the best in central Pennsylvania, have been operated at a financial loss to the State during the past year, even with unlimited numbers of convicts on hand, is but one of numerous charges that will confront the Board of Inspectors and, in all likelihood, will also go before the next Legislature.

Another question that will be pressed for investigation will be that of the source of moonshine liquor which a large number of convicts secured and which resulted in a small-sized riot that sent twenty-five or thirty to the Rockview hospital. This occurred only a short time before the outbreak that brought the State constabulary to the prison. Whether the convicts actually constructed and operated stills, making their own moonshine liquor, or whether they stole grain alcohol, used in handling certain machinery, is a matter that has caused no end of speculation. The fact remains, however, that a large number of convicts got drunk on moonshine liquor and engaged in a free-for-all fight among themselves that sent two score or more of their number to the hospital for repairs. There have been no drunken brawls among the convicts since the State police took charge of discipline. It was following the arrival of the State police that heroin and other drugs, as well as saws and various tools, were found secreted in the clothing of convicts.

Everything possible is being done at Rockview to speed up completion of a cannery to preserve and thereby save tomatoes, beans, and other vegetables usually put up for use during the winter. The cannery in existence there was dismantled several months ago, it is said, the plan being to supplant it with a much larger one. The larger cannery was delayed, meanwhile the smaller one was out of commission, and vegetables from the prison truck farms have continued to pile up and no means at hand to save them from total waste. The cannery situation is cited by observers as simply another illustration of the loose methods that have prevailed at Rockview during the past summer.

GUARDS SUSTAINED

Pittsburgh Prison Board Dismissed Deputy Warden Whalen.

Guards at the Western Penitentiary at Pittsburgh, who filed a petition protesting against lack of support in their efforts to support discipline, were sustained by the Board of Inspectors, at a meeting at Pittsburgh last Thursday. The guards had threatened to resign unless conditions, much similar to those at Rockview under the Stutzman system of management, were remedied immediately.

In the guards' petition it was stated that "the situation has become acute in the past two months and things have reached a stage where patience has ceased to be a virtue."

The petition also stated that "an officer in this institution today must sacrifice every atom of principle and manhood if he elects to remain in the service . . . he must submit to the brazen insolence of the inmates and the humiliating ignomy of not being supported by his superiors."

The Board of Inspectors announced the dismissal of John Whalen, deputy warden, who was charged with refusal to support the guards in their work. Whalen was formerly on the staff of the Minnesota State Penitentiary. His ideas for prison management were said to be much the same as those adopted at Rockview when Supt. Stutzman was placed in charge there. Stutzman came to Rockview from Detroit, Mich. Following the meeting of the Board of Directors at Pittsburgh, a formal statement was issued, in part, as follows:

"The committee appointed by the chairman of the Board of Trustees to investigate the matter complained of by the guards in their petition addressed to the board, met at the Western Penitentiary on Wednesday, Sept. 10, and heard a number of the guards individually and later heard a number of the guards collectively.

"The chief complaint of the guards was that they were not receiving proper support from the deputy warden in their attempt to enforce discipline in the penitentiary.

"Details supporting this complaint were given to the committee and a partial report (the investigation not being entirely completed) was made to the trustees at their meeting Friday.

"This committee, of which Mrs. Rae Muirhead, of Lawrence County, is chairman, reported that to a large extent at least, the complaints of the guards were justified. This report found that the deputy warden had not been properly supporting the guards when prisoners were reported for infraction of the rules.

"The report of the committee was received and unanimously approved by the board and assurances were given to the guards that strict discipline would be maintained in the institution."

Following the dismissal of Whalen, as deputy warden, Stanley P. Ashe was placed in charge of discipline at the penitentiary, and on Monday he was chosen warden at the prison, succeeding John M. Egan, who resigned because of dissatisfaction with the system of management which he was compelled to adopt after Pinchot became Governor. Egan, as warden, was an exponent of humane treatment of prisoners, accompanied by rigid enforcement of rules.

THE CONSTITUTION

The Constitution of the United States embodies the wisdom of the ages as applied to government.

It was drawn for a little nation of three million people. It serves as well for one hundred millions.

It was drawn before the great advance in scientific knowledge. Before the days of steam, electricity and oil. It has sufficed to meet the changes incident to the amazing progress made through these discoveries.

Adopted by the last of the thirteen original states, in 1790, one hundred and thirty-four years ago, it has been amended nineteen times to meet changing conditions. Yet no article affecting the great principles of government has been disturbed.

It is now proposed to destroy the balance of power, the individual liberty, that this great Charter insures.

The ripe wisdom of the founders of the Republic, the wisdom of Washington and Jefferson, of Franklin and Hamilton, is to be cast aside. The experience of more than a century disregarded.

We are asked to accept the temporary views of Mr. Robert LaFollette, of Wisconsin, on the profound science of government.

Shall we now impair, and finally destroy, this precious possession?

THE AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

LONDON'S IDEA OF LEGION BASEBALL

A recent baseball game played by members of the London post of the American Legion brought forth the following comment in the London Daily Herald:

"That the American Legion should have chosen the Chelsea football ground for their baseball rendezvous reflects their sense of propriety. The game should be called 'glorified rounders.' One ceases to wonder why the adjectives 'fierce' and 'husky' are so popular in the American vocabulary after witnessing a 'ball game.'

"To the uninitiated the most unfortunate man on the field seems to be the club-swinger. He goes in carrying a club not unlike a pick handle. No sooner has he taken up his position than the 'catcher' behind him, feeling comparatively safe in a mask and breast-protector, tells him what a bloody, decomposed player he is, and the 'pitcher' who delivers the ball, being well out of reach of the club, keeps up a continual stream of unkind remarks, at the same time executing a kind of war dance, and ends by slugging the ball at the club-swinger as hard as he can throw it.

"Then the spectators join in. Should the club-swinger slug the ball out of the grounds and run round the three bases, all his sins are forgiven and he is a 'sure-go-getter,' but should he miss the ball altogether he is a 'wall-eyed mutt,' and advised to borrow a door or get a pair of 'horn-rims.' This unfortunate club-swinger has many ways of escape. He can be thrown out, run out, caught stealing or talked out. Many times the 'pitcher' tries to knock him out by hitting him with the ball.

"The 'top-notch' club-swingers in America are reported to draw salaries equaling those of English cabinet ministers. This may be due to the cost of life insurance premiums."

Trust Fund to Care for Legionnaires When Old

Against the day of forgetfulness, the American Legion of Minneapolis is making preparation.

Against the time when the Legionnaires are old and few and intervening years and events have crowded out of the public mind the service of 1917-18, the Hennepin county central committee is proposing to set up a $500,000 trust fund. For the aged Legionnaires of the future who may have suffered "the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune" and must turn to a new Minneapolis that does not know them, the young Legionnaires of today propose to make their $18,000 Poppy day trust fund, a nucleus of a much greater foundation.

E. C. Nicholson, commander of the Hennepin county central committee, stated recently that a first campaign for the additional fund may be waged this fall. Only the interest from the Poppy day fund is now usable, and the new fund likewise would be held in trust with only the interest available except in most unusual cases, and then only on a virtually unanimous vote of the Legion.

In the end, when the last Legionnaire had died, the trust fund would go to the Minneapolis foundation.

Coolidge Compliments Worker Among Disabled

Mrs. Belle Nye of Albuquerque, N. M., past national historian of the American Legion auxiliary, recently interviewed President Coolidge and General Hines, head of the United States veterans' bureau, in the interest of the disabled service persons of New Mexico. President Coolidge communicated with Mrs. Nye as follows:

"My Dear Mrs. Nye:

"I am very glad to learn through the interest of Senator Bursum about the fine work you are doing among the disabled soldiers. I want you to know how keen is my own interest in their behalf and how much I appreciate the efforts of people like yourself, who give so freely and willingly to better their condition.

"Most sincerely yours,
"CALVIN COOLIDGE."

Largest Post in World Does Not Need Charity

Fifty-three more members, and the Omaha post of the American Legion, largest in the world, will have passed the 3,000 mark. The Omaha post recently passed a resolution asking that it not be included in the Omaha Community Chest, funds from which are allotted to various organizations for charitable purposes. Omaha post stated in this regard: "It has been our proud boast that the post has been self-supporting. We have sought members on the basis that each member should 'help carry a buddy's pack.' We should dislike to see the Legion, particularly the largest post in the world, forsake this policy and become dependent upon the Community Chest."

FIND JOHNSON IS ORPHANS' FRIEND

Orphans of soldiers of the World war have found in Dr. O. G. Johnson of Fostoria, Mich., a devoted and far-seeing friend—the sort of friend who makes his interest count for the maximum in good works. Doctor Johnson, who is now manager and medical director of the American Legion Children's Billet No. 1, at Otter Lake, Mich., has been connected with the development of that haven of refuge for the waifs of war since the inception of the idea which found expression in it.

After the Michigan department in 1922 approved the idea, which was conceived by Mark T. McKee, the Seventh Michigan district sought a site for the billet. Doctor Johnson was chairman of the commitete appointed to raise funds for its purchase. Donations of $11,500 were secured and the grounds were bought. The department accepted them.

Through the efforts of Dr. Johnson, who is a state senator, and of Senator Gansser, the latter of Bay City, Mich., a bill appropriating $50,000 to be used by the Legion in construction work was passed by the state legislature in 1923. Building operations were started soon after. The billet was formally dedicated recently, and there are now under its sheltering care 27 children.

Doctor Johnson, enlisting on July 12, 1917, was ordered overseas 17 days later. He was placed in command of Saumur Artillery School hospital at Saumur, France. When the hospital was disbanded on February 6, 1918, he was ordered to Base Hospital 103 at Dijon. He returned with the hospital and was discharged on August 26, 1919.

The post of the Legion at Fostoria was organized by Doctor Johnson. He has been active in its work and in that of the state department since that time.

Unique and Impressive Memorial Is Unveiled

Perhaps one of the most unique and impressive memorial monuments ever unveiled was dedicated by the American Legion of Manchester, Massachusetts, recently. The American Legion monument at Manchester does not glorify war; it shows it stark and terrible, but as the crucible from which evolves the dawn of a new and brighter day. This is done through two medallions appearing on opposite sides of the monument. One called "Night" pictures a skeleton hanging on the barbed-wire before the trenches, every line making it seem to swing and rattle as the winds play about it. Beneath the skeleton are the words, "Lest We Forget." On the opposite side of the monument is a medallion called "Dawn." There, brother has met brother with gripped palms while the sun of a new era is illumining the world, and in the clouds, depicted through the forms of naked babes, the spirit of a generation yet unborn proclaims the new era and the ideals for which the World war was fought.

Docked for Lost Time; Will Try to Change Law

At a meeting of the American Legion at Lowell, Mass., recently a movement was set on foot to change the existing city ordinance whereby city employees who observe Memorial day by refraining from work on that day are "docked," to the effect that employees may observe the day without loss of pay. Several veterans, who did not work on Memorial day out of respect to their departed buddies, had their pay "docked" by the city as a result. The Legion sought the advice of Department Judge Advocate Joseph M. Bartlett, who advised that the city acted within its rights under the law, whereupon the local post took steps to amend the law.

To Aid Tuberculosis Victims

Convalescent homes for tubercular veterans in New Jersey will be placed under the direction of a central committee of Legionnaires, if plans under consideration are adopted. Accommodations for tuberculosis victims in arrested stages will be provided at the Huntsberg convalescent home, conducted by the Legion, the medical advisory staff has decided.

Specialists in Thievery Also

Each Separate Division Has Its Own Peculiar Technique and Tools.

New York.—In the many years that thievery has flourished it has become highly specialized. Each separate division has its own technique and tools and is carried on by men skilled in their use. The holdup man has his gun and his blackjack and a speedy motor car to make his get-away. The second-story man has his jimmy and his flashlight. The bank teller uses false entries and bundles of fake securities. Railroad freight car thieves are part of an extensive organization that includes spies to keep an eye out for valuable shipments moving over the road, men who break into cars of moving trains and throw off merchandise, confederates with motor trucks, and fences that dispose of the loot.

Take any professional out of his particular department and the chances are that he would bungle the job. A first-class box car thief could no more filch a diamond ring from a jewelry store than an iron puddler could make the wheels of a 15-jewel movement go round.

One of the specialists is the department store thief. The larger department stores have detective forces of from 10 to 15 operatives, half of them usually women. Some of the smaller stores keep one or two operatives in their employ, while others secure detectives from outside agencies for work at rush seasons or special sales.

In some cases the department store thief is behind the counter. A girl working at the silk stocking counter, for example, finds it easy to get a pair for herself, for a gift, or for sale at a reduced price to a fence. She simply sticks several pairs under her garter and walks out of the store with them when she goes home at night. Detection is difficult. While the number of stockings originally delivered to the counter is a matter of record, the fact that four or five girls all make sales out of the same lot and several hundred customers handle them each day makes it extremely difficult to trace the thief. If employees are suspected of systematic robbing, detectives armed with warrants search their homes for stolen goods while the employees are detained at the store on one pretext or another.

How the Shoplifter Works.

Thefts by customers are also difficult to detect unless the sales people or the store detective catch them in the very act of lifting the merchandise. Silk stockings are stolen more frequently than any other articles sold in department stores. Silk underwear comes next in popularity, with leather goods a close third. Various methods are used by customers who help themselves to these articles. Women shoplifters frequently place a bag with a hinged bottom on top of some goods on the counter. The woman opens the bag and pretends to be searching for something in it while in reality she has pulled up the hinged bottom and drawn the merchandise inside.

Another method commonly used is for a person to take from a handbag a piece of cloth with the alleged purpose of matching it. When the cloth is put back into the bag a pair of silk stockings or a piece of silk underwear is stuffed in with it.

Thefts of jewelry, while not as common as a few years ago, are still of such frequent occurrence as to keep store detectives on the jump. In the old days, when department stores kept their jewelry displayed on the tops of counters or when salesmen brought out several trays at a time, it was a great deal easier to get away with a gold watch or a diamond ring than it is today, when trays are kept under glass and the salesman produces only one at a time.

Chewing Gum as an Aid.

Two methods are still used in the theft of rings. Both of them make use of a humble piece of chewing gum. In the first a man with a cane steps up to the jewelry counter and asks to see some rings. The salesman brings out a tray and lays several rings on the counter. The prospective "customer" has placed a piece of chewing gum on the tip of the curved handle of his cane. When the salesman is not looking the thief touches the gum to one of the rings. It sticks. He tells the clerk he has not found anything he wants and walks out.

In the other method a piece of gum is attached to the bottom of the narrow strip of molding running around the top of the glass showcase. The thief is shown some rings and, when the attention of the clerk is temporarily diverted, he sticks one of the rings in the gum. When the ring is missed by the salesman the thief admits that it disappeared under suspicious circumstances and consents to be searched by the store detective. Nothing is found on him and he walks out. A short time later a confederate enters, engages the ring salesman in conversation, and slips the ring from the gum under the molding into his pocket.

Thefts of hats are common. One method is for a woman wearing a $2 hat to walk into the store and ask to see a hat selling somewhere around $25. She tries on various models, and when the saleswoman looks away for a moment the "customer" walks out with a $25 hat on her head while her $2 hat graces the counter. Men also work this trick during straw-hat season.

One of the most daring of recent thefts occurred in a department store in an eastern city. A man wearing no hat approached a negro porter employed in the store, slipped 25 cents into his hand and asked him to help roll up a very expensive oriental rug lying on the floor. The porter, pleased with the tip and assuming that the man was an employee because he wore no hat, helped him roll up the rug and put it on his shoulder. Several floorwalkers and store officials who saw the man walk away with the rug thought he was an employee of the window trimming department. They reached this conclusion when they saw the porter helping him. The man disappeared around a corner and leisurely walked out of the building.

Shake-Down Game.

A shake-down game was recently worked on a department store in a Middle West city by a well-dressed man who stepped up to the counter and asked to see some gloves. He tried on several pairs, glancing around nervously. His furtive glances attracted the attention of a detective, who took up a position at the next counter and watched him. While the salesgirl's back was turned the man put a pair of gloves into his pocket. He then told her he saw nothing he liked and started walking out of the store, followed by the detective, who stopped him at the door. He became indignant when the detective requested him to accompany him.

The detective, however, was insistent, and the man was searched. A pair of gloves similar in color and design to those on sale at the counter was found in his pocket. They bore, however, the mark of another department store in the same city. The man said he had bought them there the day before. He took the detective to that store with him and the salesgirl at the glove counter verified the sale. The man again became indignant and shook down the store for a tidy sum on the ground of a threatened suit. His little ruse of first ascertaining what kind of gloves the store was selling and then purchasing a pair like them and laying them on the counter while he talked to the salesgirl worked. —New York Times.

MEN BET THEIR LIBERTY AWAY IN THE MAYA SPORTS COURT

Chichen Itza Throne Room Is Also Uncovered by Staff of Carnegie Institution.

Washington.—Discovery of the reputed throne of the emperors of Chichen Itza, civil and religious center of the Maya, an aboriginal civilization that extended through Yucatan and Guatemala, and the unearthing of another court, where the god of chance reigned, have just been reported by the staff of the Carnegie institution of Washington, engaged in excavating ruins in that region. Tlachtli was the name they called the game akin to modern basketball.

Dr. Sylvanus G. Morley, associated in middle American archeology with Dr. Earl H. Morris, is engaged in the institution's program for excavation of the ancient Mava metropolis.

The tlachtli court was composed of two high parallel walls, from 50 to 100 feet apart. A stone ring, parallel to the wall and at right angles to the floor, jutted out near the top of either wall. Through this ring the contending sportsmen sought to put a rubber ball by bouncing it from either wrist, elbow or hip.

In the heat of the sport the ancient gamblers were wont to wager their liberty, accepting slavedom if they lost, says Doctor Morley's account. The ownership of vast estates hung on the outcome of the games. Quills filled with gold dust or trinkets of intrinsic value were the more common bets.

The ancient throne, recently brought to light, is likewise described by Doctor Morley's account. It is thirteen feet wide, seven feet deep and three feet high, elaborately and beautifully sculptured, he says.

"Its sloping sides are carved with a procession of gorgeously costumed warriors, weaving in and out among whom are long, sinuous rattlesnakes," Doctor Morley reports. "This panel is topped with a cornice composed of other intertwining rattlesnakes. The throne is painted in deep red, warm yellow, brilliant blue and vivid green, and when approached from the front, between the outer pair of sculptured columns, which are similarly painted, it must have presented a striking picture of barbaric splendor.

"The floors were of hard lime plaster, painted a rich red, and around the back and side walls runs a deep, broad bench with sloping back, where priests sat in solemn deliberation and, with the Itzan rulers seated upon the rattlesnake throne, settled the affairs of state," Doctor Morley points out.

Bright Lights Rid Orchard of Moths

Peach Grower Tries an Interesting Experiment.

Swedesboro, N. J.—The candle flame that singes the moth's wings has furnished the idea upon which late Isaac Hurff Weatherby, owner of one of the largest farms and peach orchards in southern New Jersey, has elaborated in his fight against the Oriental moth, newest and most destructive of the pests that have attacked peaches in the East.

Instead of using candles, however, Mr. Weatherby has been more modern. He has had an electric lighting system constructed in his 60-acre peach orchard. At night the orchard is a blaze of light. Around the incandescent light bulbs flutter myriads of moths and other insects. Their wings are not singed but those attracted closest to the lights become dazzled and fall into large, shallow pans, one of which is set a few inches below each electric globe. These pans are filled with kerosene, which kills all moths and insects that touch it.

Electric lights are in common use among poultry breeders to make the hens get up earlier so that they will scratch more and lay better, but the Weatherby farm boasts of the first electrically lighted orchard in the country. The orchard is set upon a hill, and from a distance it looks like a pleasure park. Thousands of motorists have had their curiosity aroused by the unusual sight.

Peach Grower for Thirty Years.

"I realized last year that I would either have to do something to stop the moths or they would finish me," said Mr. Weatherby, who has been growing peaches for more than thirty years and who declares that the Oriental moth has caused more havoc in his orchards than any other pest, with the possible exception of the borer. The fruit growers now have the borer under control, but they have found no effective means of combating the Oriental moth with the usual poisonous sprays.

"This electric light system was put in early in the summer," continued Mr. Weatherby. "It has cost me a lot of money and I've learned a lot about moths. I have learned that there isn't much use of wasting electric current on moonlight nights. There are few moths in the traps after a full moon.

"Even on the dark nights I have found that the moths and other insects are thicker at some hours than at others. When the lights were first put in I made regular inspection trips to the orchards at all hours of the night. Eleven o'clock seems to be the witching hour for the moths. Early in the evening they are not so thick. I have visited the traps at two o'clock in the morning and haven't seen a single insect fluttering around the lights. At eleven o'clock I have found swarms of them."

Mr. Weatherby pointed out the Oriental moth. It is a small, gray moth, scarcely more than twice as big as a fly. The moth lays its eggs at the tips of the young tree shoots. The worm that hatches out bores into the pith of the shoot for an inch or two. After it strikes the tougher bark he crawls to another twig or bores into the green fruit.

Balks at Poison.

This pest seems to have an instinctive repulsion against poison sprays and powders, as horticultural experts have discovered that it spits out the first bite it takes of a twig or skin of a peach and eats only beneath the surface where the poisons that kill most of the other insects do not penetrate.

When Mr. Weatherby first discovered the extent of their damage last summer he tried out a system of oil lanterns and pans in a section of his orchard. These he replaced with the electric lights as more practical this year. Furthermore, he says that he has had "an army as big as Grant's" cutting off the grub-infested twigs wherever they are found, which is very readily done as the end of the twig or shoot begins to wilt as soon as the moth stings it and lays its eggs.

"Oriental moths are apparently everywhere now," explained Mr. Weatherby. "You can find them on the most isolated peach tree as well as in the big orchards. I don't know whether my lights are really exterminating all the moths that they should or whether they are attracting more moths from other parts of the country. Maybe when all of the rest of the fruit growers get to fighting the Oriental moth, or its natural parasite enemies catch up with it, we can at least get the pest under control. Until then nobody can buy my lighting outfit."

8,582 Killed in Year at Grade Crossings

New York.—That 8,582 persons were killed at railroad grade crossings during 1923, an increase of 20 per cent over 1922, is the official announcement of the United States bureau of public roads.

The bureau insists on elimination of grade crossings on federal aid projects wherever practicable.

Many dangerous crossings have already been eliminated with the co-operation of state highway departments through the construction of steel or concrete overhead crossings or underpasses and by relocating the highway to avoid crossing and recrossing railroad tracks, the report states.

Cooked 61 Years on Old Pet Stove

Still Gleams Despite 67,000 Meals Prepared on It.

Quinton, N. J.—Cooking a single meal for the family in a gas or electrically equipped kitchen seems like a big task to most housewives these hot days, but Mrs. Herbert Sheets, who has lived in this Salem county village long enough to have cooked 67,000 meals all on the same stove still likes to cook.

Winter and summer, morning, noon and night, for 61 years, Mrs. Sheets has prepared the food for her family on the same stove that her husband bought for her as his bride when they were married on Washington's birthday, 1863.

"I have always liked to cook," said Mrs. Sheets, whose back is bent from so much stooping to stir a pot or to see how bread or pies were browning in the oven.

Prefers Plain Cooking.

"I get a little spent and tired sometimes," she continued, and then explained half apologetically that she now buys her bread, and occasionally cakes, from the village baker. Until recently she did all her own baking in addition to preparing the regular three meals a day. For 61 summers she and her stove have tackled with bright faces the job of almost endless canning and preserving.

"Just plain, ordinary cooking is what I do," she went on, when asked what she likes to cook the most. "I have never bothered much with fancy dishes—just those substantial things for my husband and our boys and girls.

"No, I never counted up to see how many meals I've cooked on this stove. It's the only stove we've ever had, and I don't have to tell you it's a good one when I say that we've used it every day since we were married. It has a good oven. I dry all of my wood in there, and it's still fine for baking. Once, some years ago, we had a new top put on the stove. That's about the only thing about the stove that has ever needed fixing since we got it."

The stove which has cooked the food and provided much of the heat in winter for Mr. and Mrs. Sheets during their long married life was cast in a Philadelphia foundry by a firm now extinct. It is of the old-fashioned design of the Sixties, with ample firebox, large oven and four lids. It burns either coal or wood. As wood has been most abundant in the communities where the family had lived, that has been the principal fuel; so, in addition to the cooking, the kindling of fires has been no small part of Mrs. Sheets' kitchen tasks.

Kept Brightly Polished.

So brightly polished does Mrs. Sheets keep her stove that it does not look old even now. Its surface reflected her face as she stooped to take from the oven, to show to visitors the other day, a bread pan which was also one of her wedding gifts. This pan, too, has lasted through all the years.

Upon this stove's polished surface dropped the tears of disappointment of the bride who scorched her first meal. From its hot face rose those whisps of steam as a mother's tears welled in joy over the coming of children into the home, or flowed in sorrow over the last meal prepared for their departure from the old threshold into the big, wide world. Later splashed those tears of gratitude, which left spots that had to be rubbed off, after the same accustomed hands had prepared the feasts for the golden wedding and still more recently for the sixtieth and sixty-first wedding anniversaries.

This little woman does not regard it as remarkable that she and her stove have probably set a record for all America. She likes to cook, the stove just suits her, and her husband and family have enjoyed her cooking through all these years. What more could any housewife ask?

Furthermore, her family has thrived on her cooking. If the fact that she and her husband still survive after nearly sixty-one years and six months of married life is not sufficient proof of her culinary ability, then there are the five stalwart sons and daughters, all still living, and a progeny of eighty grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness are oftentimes symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation, send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing, be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

The Essential

Robert was invited over to the neighbor's for dinner. As the maid brought in the fried chicken and all that usually appeals to the three-year-old, Robert continued to gaze furtively toward the kitchen. After the dessert course he voiced his judgment.

"You haven't got very much, have you?"

"Why?" asked the hostess a bit taken aback.

"Well, I don't see any ice cream."

Don't chuckle if you put over a substitute when an advertised product is called for. Maybe your customer will never come back.

WHOLE FAMILY ENDORSE TANLAC AS BEST TONIC

"Tanlac has been our constant friend for years, and my wife and myself and eight children are all enjoying wonderful health, largely due to this medicine," is the remarkable statement of Harry H. Pistole, 310 Archer St., Waco, Texas.

"In my own case Tanlac has done what seemed to be impossible. When I began taking it my stomach was in such a bad fix that I had to live on a milk and egg diet and I was almost a skeleton. I had been flat on my back in bed and under treatment for 18 months and felt that my time was about up.

"After my case had been given up as hopeless and I thought I was beyond redemption a relative put me on to Tanlac, and the result is, I gained 20 pounds, and enjoy as good health as anybody could wish.

"My wife was all broken down in health. But now she weighs 155 pounds, and is strong and well and I am giving Tanlac credit for it. We give Tanlac to the children to tone them up and make them grow, and nobody ever had a healthier set of children than we have.

"Tanlac is certainly the greatest medicine on earth for anyone whose life is wrecked by bad health. We sure do have a great deal to praise Tanlac for at my house."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Mothers of Ailing Daughters, Attention

How Two Mothers Helped Their Daughters by Giving them Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Every mother possesses information of vital importance to her young daughter, and the responsibility for the girl's future is largely in her hands.

When a school girl's thoughts become sluggish, when she suffers the consequences of wet feet, pain, headaches, fainting spells, loss of sleep and appetite and is irregular, her mother should have a care for her physical condition and give her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which has proved a reliable aid to nature for just such conditions in so many cases.

First Bottle Helped Her

Richmond, Indiana.—"I am sending this letter to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did my daughter. She was troubled with nervousness so that she was restless at night, and then she could not sleep and she was afraid of everything. She could not work as she was not strong enough, and she had to quit school at 14 because she was ill so much. The doctor said she had a nervous breakdown and her system was all run down. She had pains in her right side and through her back, and the medicine she took did her no good at all. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's advertisement in our paper, telling all that the Vegetable Compound had done for other women, so I said, 'We will try it out and see what it does.' She had not taken the first bottle before it began to help her, and we will always say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best medicine she ever took."—Mrs. E. DARBY, 911 N. 16th Street, Richmond, Indiana.

An Ohio Mother Reports

Columbus, Ohio. — "When my daughter became 14 years of age she was ailing very much. The doctor gave her medicine, but she was very weak, and he always had to write excuses for her as she could not attend the 'gym' classes, and I often had to keep her home from school. I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for my nerves and run-down condition, so I gave her three doses daily, and also Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine. Our friends are surprised to see how fine and tall she is getting and how well she is. I will gladly answer letters and give you a fine recommendation for other mothers." — Mrs. MARIE MIELKE, 814 Ebner Street, Columbus, Ohio.

Over 100,000 women have so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

98 per cent. of these replies answer "Yes." That means that 98 out of every 100 women who have taken this medicine have been helped by it. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Gets Rid of Rats

A Detroit merchant has perfected a device which has cleared his store of rats in a very short time, he says. He has a box on the floor, with a door swinging from its upper edge. The door is smeared with cheese, and as the rat pushes on it, it opens and admits him to a small compartment with a hole into a huge tank of water, where he drowns. The trap is very effective, and has to be emptied every day.
